

MID-II QUESTION BANK

PROFESSIONAL SKILLS FOR ENGINEERS – 25LPS101

PART – 1 (SHORT QUESTIONS)

1. What are finite and non-finite verbs? Give suitable examples.
2. Discuss the types of subordinate clauses (noun, adjective, adverb) with examples.
3. Identify the emotion conveyed by each interjection: Oops!, Yippee!, Ouch!
4. Compare and contrast simple present and simple past in terms of meaning and use.
5. What is Clause and write the types of clause with examples?
6. Explain the difference between transitive and intransitive verbs with examples.
7. How can complex sentence structures improve academic and narrative writing?
8. Define a correlative conjunction and give two examples.
9. Define simple present tense and give one example.
10. What is sentence ? Write the types of Sentences.
11. Discuss common errors in subject–verb agreement made by Indian learners of English.

12. Discuss the functions and types of prepositions with examples.
13. Differentiate between coordinating and subordinating conjunctions.
14. Name the four types of sentences based on function.
15. Give any five example of Simple Past tense.

PART – 2 (LONG QUESTIONS)

16. “When the subject is separated from the verb by a phrase, the verb still agrees with the subject, not the noun in the phrase.” Explain this rule with examples.
17. Discuss the difference between prepositional phrases and adverbial phrases.
18. Illustrate the difference between coordinating, subordinating, and correlative conjunctions with examples.
19. Write five well-constructed sentences using different sentence types (affirmative, negative, interrogative, imperative, exclamatory).
20. Write a letter to Principal asking Two days leave for your sister’s marriage.
21. Write a short paragraph (5–6 sentences) demonstrating correct subject–verb agreement. Underline each subject and circle each verb.
22. Analyze how overuse of contractions can affect academic or formal writing style.
23. Write five sentences using different interjections to express joy, sorrow, anger, and surprise.

24. Write a conversation between two friends — one describing today's routine and the other recalling yesterday's events.
25. What is Phrase and it's types? Explain in details.
26. Examine how compound subjects affect subject–verb agreement. Provide examples.
27. Differentiate between compound and complex sentences with examples.
28. Analyze the role of prepositions in sentence coherence and meaning.
29. Write a short paragraph describing your school life then and now (past vs. present).
30. Write a letter to Principal requesting her to issue Bonofide Certificate for higher studies.

PART – 1 (SHORT QUESTIONS WITH ANSWERS)

1. What are finite and non-finite verbs? Give suitable examples.

Answer:

Finite verbs change according to the subject or tense. Example:
She writes daily.

Non-finite verbs do not change with subject or tense and stay in the base form.

They include infinitives, gerunds, and participles. Example: She likes to write.

They help form different structures in sentences.

2. Discuss the types of subordinate clauses (noun, adjective, adverb) with examples.

Answer:

A noun clause acts as a noun. Example: I believe that he is honest.

An adjective clause describes a noun. Example: The boy who won the prize is my friend.

An adverb clause modifies a verb and shows time or reason. Example: She left because she was tired.

These clauses make writing clearer and more detailed.

3. Identify the emotion conveyed by each interjection: Oops!, Yippee!, Ouch!

Answer:

Oops! shows a mistake or accident.

Yippee! shows happiness or excitement.

Ouch! expresses sudden pain.

Interjections quickly convey strong feelings in speech.

4. Compare and contrast simple present and simple past in terms of meaning and use.

Answer:

Simple present shows habits, routines, or universal truths.

Example: She writes daily.

Simple past shows actions completed in the past. Example: She wrote yesterday.

Present refers to regular or ongoing actions, while past refers to actions already finished.

Both tenses help express time clearly.

5. What is Clause and write the types of clause with examples?

Answer:

A clause is a group of words with a subject and a verb.

An independent clause gives complete meaning. Example: She finished her work.

A dependent clause cannot stand alone. Example: Because she was late.

Both types are used to form sentences.

6. Explain the difference between transitive and intransitive verbs with examples.

Answer:

Transitive verbs need an object. Example: She writes a letter.

Intransitive verbs make complete sense without an object.

Example: The baby laughed.

The presence or absence of an object decides the type.

Knowing the difference improves sentence clarity.

7. How can complex sentence structures improve academic and narrative writing?

Answer:

Complex sentences show relationships like cause, condition, or time.

They help express detailed ideas clearly and logically.

They add variety and prevent repetition.

Such structure strengthens academic and story writing.

8. Define a correlative conjunction and give two examples.

Answer:

Correlative conjunctions come in pairs and join equal sentence parts.

Examples: either...or, neither...nor.

They help show choices, combinations, or contrasts.

Example: Either Raju or Ravi will come.

9. Define simple present tense and give one example.

Answer:

Simple present shows habitual actions, facts, or routines.

It uses the base form of the verb.

Example: She reads every day.

It expresses actions done regularly.

10. What is sentence ? Write the types of Sentences.

Answer:

A sentence expresses a complete thought with a subject and verb.

Types include declarative, interrogative, imperative, and exclamatory sentences.

Each type serves a different purpose like stating, asking, ordering, or expressing feelings.

Sentences help communicate ideas clearly.

11. Discuss common errors in subject–verb agreement made by Indian learners of English.

Answer:

Learners often match the verb with the wrong nearby word instead of the subject.

They confuse indefinite pronouns like everyone or someone.

Example: Everyone are (incorrect) instead of Everyone is (correct).

Errors also occur with collective nouns and intervening phrases.

Understanding rules helps avoid mistakes.

12. Discuss the functions and types of prepositions with examples.

Answer:

Prepositions show relationships of time, place, and direction.

Types include prepositions of time (at, on), place (in, under), and direction (to, into).

Example: in the room, at 5 PM.

They connect nouns/pronouns to the rest of the sentence.

13. Differentiate between coordinating and subordinating conjunctions.

Answer:

Coordinating conjunctions join equal ideas. Example: and, but, or.

Subordinating conjunctions introduce dependent ideas. Example: because, although.

Coordinating joins two main clauses; subordinating joins a main and dependent clause.

Both help create connected sentences.

14. Name the four types of sentences based on function.

Answer:

Declarative – states something.

Interrogative – asks a question.

Imperative – gives a command.

Exclamatory – expresses strong emotion.

These types help express different intentions.

15. Give any five example of Simple Past tense.

Answer:

He walked.

She sang.

They played.

I studied.

We cooked.

PART – 2 (LONG QUESTIONS WITH ANSWERS)

16. “When the subject is separated from the verb by a phrase, the verb still agrees with the subject, not the noun in the phrase.” Explain this rule with examples.

Answer:

When a phrase comes between the subject and verb, many learners mistake the noun inside the phrase as the subject.

However, according to the rule, the verb must agree only with the main subject, not the noun in the phrase.

For example: The bouquet of roses smells nice. Here, bouquet is the subject, not roses.

Another example is: The list of items is long, where list decides the verb.

This rule avoids common errors in subject–verb agreement.

Focusing on the true subject helps maintain correct grammatical structure.

It is especially useful in long, descriptive sentences.

17. Discuss the difference between prepositional phrases and adverbial phrases.

Answer:

A prepositional phrase begins with a preposition such as in, on, at, under, and connects a noun/pronoun to the rest of the sentence.

Examples include: in the classroom, on the table, or under the chair.

An adverbial phrase, on the other hand, describes how, when, or where an action happens.

Examples: very quickly, in the evening, with great care.

While prepositional phrases show relationships, adverbial phrases mainly modify verbs.

Both types add clarity and detail to writing, helping the reader understand context better.

Together, they make sentences richer and more expressive.

18. Illustrate the difference between coordinating, subordinating, and correlative conjunctions with examples.

Answer:

Coordinating conjunctions link two equal ideas or independent clauses.

Examples include and, but, or. Example: She cooked and he cleaned.

Subordinating conjunctions connect a dependent clause to a main clause, showing relationships like cause or time.

Example: I stayed home because it was raining.

Correlative conjunctions come in pairs such as either...or, neither...nor, both...and.

Example: Either Rahul or Riya will sing.

These three types of conjunctions help create meaningful, structured, and coherent sentences in writing.

19. Write five well-constructed sentences using different sentence types (affirmative, negative, interrogative, imperative, exclamatory).

Affirmative: The aircraft reached cruising altitude smoothly and on schedule.
Negative: The co-pilot could not establish radio contact during the emergency descent.
Interrogative: Are we prepared for crosswind landing on runway 27?
Imperative: Maintain heading 230 and descend to 5,000 feet.
Exclamatory: How breathtaking the view looks from the cockpit!

Answer:

Affirmative: I enjoy reading books because they make me relaxed.

Negative: I do not like going out when the weather is too hot.

Interrogative: Do you know the answer to this question?

Imperative: Please complete your homework before you go outside.

Exclamatory: What a wonderful surprise this is!

These sentences show variety in tone, purpose, and expression.

20. Write a letter to Principal asking Two days leave for your sister's marriage.

Answer:

From:

Your Name

Roll No: _____

Branch & Year: _____

College Name

To

The Principal

College Name

City

Subject: Request for Two Days Leave for Sister's Marriage

Respected Madam,

I respectfully request you to grant me two days of leave to attend my sister's marriage on _____. I need to be with my family to help with the preparations and the ceremony. This is an important family event, and my presence is necessary. I assure you that I will complete all pending work immediately after returning.

Therefore, I kindly request you to consider my application and grant me leave for the mentioned dates.

Yours sincerely,

Your Name

21. Write a short paragraph (5–6 sentences) demonstrating correct subject–verb agreement. Underline each subject and circle each verb.

Answer:

My friend helps me with my homework every day, and he never misses a day.

The group is waiting outside for the teacher to arrive.
Each student works hard to get good marks in the exams.
My parents support me in all my decisions.
The team plays together with great coordination.
These sentences show how singular subjects take singular verbs and plural subjects take plural verbs.

22. Analyze how overuse of contractions can affect academic or formal writing style.

Answer:

Contractions such as don't, won't, can't, and isn't sound casual and conversational.

In academic or formal writing, using too many contractions reduces seriousness and makes the tone appear less professional. For example, “do not” sounds more respectful and formal compared to “don’t.”

Overuse of contractions may also give the impression that the writer is careless or informal.

Formal reports, essays, and official letters generally prefer full, expanded forms of words.

Avoiding contractions creates clarity and maintains a polished writing style.

Thus, limiting contractions strengthens academic professionalism.

23. Write five sentences using different interjections to express joy, sorrow, anger, and surprise.

Answer:

Joy: Hurray! We finally completed our first solo flight.

Sorrow: Alas! The training aircraft experienced a technical failure.

Anger: Oh no! The maintenance crew forgot to refuel the aircraft on time.

Surprise: Wow! The pilot handled the crosswind landing flawlessly.

Hey! Why did you push me like that?

Wow! This painting looks absolutely beautiful!

Oh no! I forgot to bring my assignment again.

Each sentence expresses a different strong emotion using an interjection.

24. Write a conversation between two friends — one describing today's routine and the other recalling yesterday's events.

Answer:

Friend 1: Today I wake up early and attend all my classes on time.

Friend 2: Yesterday I woke up late and missed my morning lecture completely.

Friend 1: I am planning to study in the library today.

Friend 2: Yesterday I studied at home because I was feeling tired.

Friend 1: Today I will complete my assignments before evening.

Friend 2: Yesterday I submitted my work at the last minute.

This conversation shows clear difference between present and past routines.

25. What is Phrase and it's types? Explain in details.

Answer:

A phrase is a group of words that does not contain both a subject and a verb.

It cannot stand alone as a complete sentence but adds meaning to a sentence.

Types of phrases include noun phrase (the tall boy), verb phrase (is running fast), and adjective phrase (very intelligent).

Adverb phrases describe how or when actions happen, such as very slowly or in the morning.

Prepositional phrases begin with a preposition like under the table or on the wall.

Phrases help make sentences richer, descriptive, and more meaningful.

They improve both clarity and style in writing.

26. Examine how compound subjects affect subject–verb agreement. Provide examples.

Answer:

Compound subjects joined by and usually take a plural verb because they refer to more than one person or thing.

Example: Ravi and Rani are studying together.

But when subjects are joined by or or nor, the verb agrees with the subject closest to it.

Example: Either the students or the teacher is responsible.

If the nearer subject is plural, the verb becomes plural.

Example: Either the teacher or the students are writing the exam.

Understanding these patterns prevents agreement errors in complex sentences.

27. Differentiate between compound and complex sentences with examples.

Answer:

A compound sentence contains two independent clauses joined by conjunctions like and, but, or or.

Example: I studied for the test, and I completed my homework.

A complex sentence has one independent clause and at least one dependent clause.

Example: I stayed home because it was raining heavily.

Compound sentences link equal ideas, while complex sentences show relationships such as cause or time.

Both structures enrich writing by adding clarity and variety.

They help express ideas smoothly and logically.

28. Analyze the role of prepositions in sentence coherence and meaning.

Answer:

Prepositions show important relationships of time, place, direction, and position in sentences.

Examples include on the table, at 6 PM, into the room, and towards the park.

They help the reader understand where something happens, when it occurs, and how things relate.

Without prepositions, sentences become unclear and lose proper meaning.

For example, “The cat sat the chair” makes no sense without “on.”

Prepositions guide the reader and improve sentence flow.

Therefore, they play a major role in coherence and clarity.

29. Write a short paragraph describing your school life then and now (past vs. present).

Answer:

My school life in the past was simple, enjoyable, and full of fun activities with friends.

I used to spend most of my time playing games and participating in small class events.

Now my school life has become more disciplined and academically focused.

We use technology like smart boards and computers, and the workload has increased.

There is more homework, more responsibilities, and more competition.

Although it is challenging, it has helped me grow and learn new skills.

This change shows how school life develops as we become older.

30. Write a letter to Principal requesting her to issue Bonafide Certificate for higher studies.

Answer:

From:

Your Name

Roll No: _____

Branch & Year: _____

College Name

To

The Principal

College Name

City

Subject: Request for Bonafide Certificate for Higher Studies

Respected Madam,

I request you to kindly issue me a Bonafide Certificate as I require it for my higher studies admission process. The certificate is needed for verification and documentation purposes in the upcoming application procedures. I assure you that I will complete any formalities required by the office. I would be grateful if you could provide the certificate at the earliest convenience.

Thanking you in advance.

Yours sincerely,
Your Name