

Multiple Choice Questions on Communication (30 MCQs)

1. Communication is defined as the _____.

- a) transfer of goods
- b) transfer of meaning
- c) transfer of money
- d) transfer of technology

Answer: b) transfer of meaning

2. Communication may occur _____.

- a) deliberately only
- b) accidentally only
- c) both deliberately and accidentally
- d) only through speech

Answer: c) both deliberately and accidentally

3. The term communication comes from the Latin word _____.

- a) Communicare
- b) Commune
- c) Communis
- d) Communicationis

Answer: a) Communicare

4. The Latin word communicare means _____.

- a) to divide
- b) to inform
- c) to make common
- d) to translate

Answer: c) to make common

5. The statement “We cannot not communicate” implies that communication is _____.

- a) optional
 - b) unavoidable
 - c) difficult
 - d) unnecessary
- Answer: b) unavoidable
-

6. Communication with oneself is called _____ communication.

- a) interpersonal
 - b) group
 - c) intrapersonal
 - d) mass
- Answer: c) intrapersonal
-

7. Communication between two individuals is known as _____ communication.

- a) interpersonal
 - b) intrapersonal
 - c) mass
 - d) public
- Answer: a) interpersonal
-

8. Interaction among a limited number of people is called _____ communication.

- a) group
 - b) public
 - c) mass
 - d) digital
- Answer: a) group
-

9. Communication intended to inform or persuade an audience is called _____ communication.

- a) intrapersonal
 - b) interpersonal
 - c) public
 - d) private
- Answer: c) public

10. Communication using computers and the Internet is known as _____ communication.

- a) group
- b) online
- c) interpersonal
- d) public

Answer: b) online

11. Communication that reaches large audiences through media channels is called _____ communication.

- a) public
- b) group
- c) mass
- d) interpersonal

Answer: c) mass

12. In communication, the person who sends the message is called the _____.

- a) receiver
- b) sender
- c) interpreter
- d) channel

Answer: b) sender

13. The person who receives and interprets a message is the _____.

- a) sender
- b) receiver
- c) channel
- d) context

Answer: b) receiver

14. The content of a communicative act is called the _____.

- a) context
- b) message
- c) feedback
- d) channel

Answer: b) message

15. The medium used to transmit a message is called the _____.

- a) context
- b) channel
- c) feedback
- d) noise

Answer: b) channel

16. Anything that interferes with communication is called _____.

- a) context
- b) feedback
- c) noise
- d) message

Answer: c) noise

17. The setting or environment in which communication takes place is called _____.

- a) context
- b) channel
- c) feedback
- d) noise

Answer: a) context

18. Information returned to the sender after receiving a message is called _____.

- a) response
- b) feedback
- c) context

d) message

Answer: b) feedback

19. Feedback that strengthens or encourages behavior is called _____ feedback.

a) internal

b) negative

c) positive

d) external

Answer: c) positive

20. Feedback that a person gives to himself or herself is called _____ feedback.

a) external

b) internal

c) negative

d) positive

Answer: b) internal

21. Communication within an organization for conducting work is known as _____ communication.

a) internal operational

b) external operational

c) personal

d) public

Answer: a) internal operational

22. Work-related communication with people outside the organization is called _____ communication.

a) internal operational

b) external operational

c) personal

d) group

Answer: b) external operational

23. Non-business related communication among employees is called _____ communication.

- a) internal
- b) external
- c) personal
- d) formal

Answer: c) personal

24. A planned communication network within an organization is called a _____ network.

- a) informal
- b) formal
- c) external
- d) digital

Answer: b) formal

25. A dynamic and unplanned communication system within an organization is known as _____ network.

- a) formal
- b) external
- c) informal
- d) mass

Answer: c) informal

26. The dictionary meaning of a word is known as _____ meaning.

- a) connotative
- b) denotative
- c) cultural
- d) linguistic

Answer: b) denotative

27. Personal or emotional meaning associated with a word is called _____ meaning.

- a) denotative
 - b) connotative
 - c) objective
 - d) literal
- Answer: b) connotative
-

28. The theory stating that language influences how people perceive the world is called the _____.

- a) Feedback Theory
 - b) Sapir–Whorf Hypothesis
 - c) Communication Theory
 - d) Network Theory
- Answer: b) Sapir–Whorf Hypothesis
-

29. The protocol of informality used in electronic communication is known as _____.

- a) netiquette
 - b) onlinespeak
 - c) cyberspeech
 - d) digital grammar
- Answer: b) onlinespeak
-

30. Rules governing proper behavior on the Internet are known as _____.

- a) cyber law
 - b) internet rules
 - c) netiquette
 - d) web policy
- Answer: c) netiquette

Week 01 : Assignment

What does the Sapir-Whorf hypothesis primarily propose about language?

- a) Language is a unified system of symbols
- b) Words have both denotative and connotative meanings
- c) Labels we use shape our thinking and worldview
- d) Communication requires shared meanings between people

c) Labels we use shape our thinking and worldview

According to the triangle of meaning model, what relationship does it primarily explain?

- a) The connection between senders and receivers
- b) The interaction between words, things, and thoughts
- c) The difference between formal and informal networks
- d) The relationship between culture and language

b) The interaction between words, things, and thoughts

What distinguishes internal-operational communication from external-operational communication?

- a) Internal uses written forms while external uses oral forms
 - b) Internal involves work conducted within the business while external involves communication with outsiders
 - c) Internal is informal while external is formal
 - d) Internal is upward while external is downward
- b) Internal involves work conducted within the business while external involves communication with outsiders*

Which characteristic best describes "bypassing" in communication?

- a) Using euphemisms to avoid offensive language
- b) Individuals believe they understand each other but miss each other's meaning
- c) Communication that follows the formal structure of business
- d) The substitution of symbols for actual objects

b) Individuals believe they understand each other but miss each other's meaning

What is the primary distinction between "snarl words" and "purr words"?

- a) Snarl words are abstract while purr words are concrete

- b) Snarl words are formal while purr words are informal
- c) Snarl words are denotative while purr words are connotative
- d) Snarl words have negative connotations while purr words have positive connotations

d) Snarl words have negative connotations while purr words have positive connotations

In Deborah Tannen's framework, what does the term "gender-lects" refer to?

- a) The use of qualifiers and disclaimers in speech
- b) Language differences attributed to gender
- c) Sexist language patterns in professional settings
- d) The power dynamics in male-female communication

b) Language differences attributed to gender

What type of feedback occurs when you evaluate your own message during communication?

- a) Positive feedback
- b) External feedback
- c) Negative feedback
- d) Internal feedback

Accepted Answers:

d) Internal feedback

What does the "need for control" represent in the functions of communication?

- a) The need to express and receive love
- b) The need for social contact with others
- c) The need to feel capable and responsible
- d) The need to influence and persuade others

Accepted Answers:

c) The need to feel capable and responsible

How does written communication primarily differ from oral communication?

- a) Written communication uses more complex vocabulary
- b) Written communication has longer cycles and fewer cycles
- c) Written communication is more formal and structured

d) Written communication requires less creative effort

Accepted Answers:

b) Written communication has longer cycles and fewer cycles

What characterizes "linguistic determinism" as a component of the Sapir-Whorf hypothesis?

- a) Different languages create different worldviews
- b) Language influences how we interpret the world
- c) Cultural differences lead to translation confusion
- d) Language shapes social hierarchies

Accepted Answers:

b) Language influences how we interpret the world

What best describes the "informal network" in organizational communication?

- a) A complex and dynamic secondary network similar to veins in a body
- b) Communication that follows established operational lines
- c) Personal communication unrelated to business operations
- d) External communication with suppliers and customers

Accepted Answers:

a) A complex and dynamic secondary network similar to veins in a body

What function does a euphemism serve in communication?

- a) It emphasizes negative aspects to create impact
- b) It substitutes a pleasant word in place of a less pleasant one
- c) It creates politically neutral language
- d) It enhances clarity in communication

Accepted Answers:

b) It substitutes a pleasant word in place of a less pleasant one

What characterizes "tag questions" in gendered speech patterns?

- a) Questions positioned between outright statements and yes/no questions
- b) Tentative phrases that weaken statements
- c) Remarks that diminish a statement's importance
- d) Questions that assert power and control

Accepted Answers:

a) Questions positioned between outright statements and yes/no questions

What does "adaptation" represent as an underlying principle in communication study?

- a) The ability to use multiple communication channels
- b) Adjusting communication based on the communication process and audience needs
- c) The evolution of language over time
- d) Cultural sensitivity in cross-cultural exchanges

Accepted Answers:

b) Adjusting communication based on the communication process and audience needs

What distinguishes denotative meaning from connotative meaning?

- a) Denotative is context-dependent while connotative is universal
- b) Denotative is spoken while connotative is written
- c) Denotative is objective dictionary meaning while connotative is subjective personal meaning
- d) Denotative changes over time while connotative remains stable

Accepted Answers:

c) Denotative is objective dictionary meaning while connotative is subjective personal meaning